Abstract

Jordan's Foreign Policy Towards The Gulf Cooperative Council Countries During King Abdullah II Reign 1999-2006: The United Arab Emirates As a Model.

Rackez Salem Al-Eroud
Mu,tah University 2007

This study is designed to search for Jordan's foreign policy towards the Gulf Cooperative Council Countries and the United Arab Emirates in particular during king Abdullah The Second in the period 1999 -2006 . This period was an extension to the previous period so the relations between Jordan and Gulf Countries during this period were effected by two important stages: the first one extends from 1991 until 2001. This period witnessed the collapse of the Soviet Union and Second Gulf War and the appearance of what is called the New World Order . The second stage was from 2001 -2006 which is distinguished by the eleventh of September events and the American war on Afghanistan and Iraq.

Analytical and descriptive methods were used in this study to characterize Jordan's foreign policy towards the Arab Gulf Countries, and how the international developments have impacted such relationships. While the relation between Jordan and the Countries of The Gulf Cooperative Council was not in good condition because of Iraqi occupation to Kuwait when Jordan stand was a neutral one by rejecting Iraqi occupation to Kuwait, and also rejecting the world sanction on Iraq and calling for returning to solve the differences inside the Arab region . during the second stage, king Abdullah the second was able to encore the relations with Gulf Countries through intensive visits which reach more than twenty one visit, whether these visits were on the official levels or governmental specially to United Arab of Emirates. The 11 events of September misfortunes, the war on Afghanistan and Iraq, steered Jordan, relationship with the Gulf states and international efforts to fight the international terrorism and to solidify the relation between the two countries Despite the difficulty of this period but the satstartial cooperation between Jordan and The gulf countries was in all fields, politically , economically and in security, but the economical field was the dominant one on the relations between both sides.
